"This riveting testimonial should serve as inspiration to us all and to the fact that we can beat diabetes."

Francine R. Kaufman, M.D.
Children's Hospital, Los Angeles
Past President of American Diabetes Association
Author of Diabetes, (Bantam, 2005)

"James W. Quander was truly a trailblazer and a hero, who demonstrated early in life that juvenile diabetes is not necessarily a death sentence. He challenged those who doubted his determination to survive, placing his trust in God, the old Freedmen's Hospital, the Howard University College of Medicine and the medical staff, who taught him basic survival skills.."

H. Patrick Swygert,
President, Howard University

On behalf of the Board, volunteers, and staff of the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation (JDRF), I acknowledge and praise the key role that Rev. James Quander has played in helping raise the awareness of the seriousness of diabetes and the need for "Cure" research. We celebrate him as an "elder diabetes statesman", and for the fine example he set through his long life with this chronic, debilitating disease.
